

Voices OF HOPE

Tanzania

The community of Nanganga, Tanzania is home to a small health clinic supported by PWRDF and the Diocese of Masasi, with funding from Global Affairs Canada. Blandina Corobinani is a mother who lives just a few minutes walk from the clinic. Blandina is happy to have the clinic so near to her house, and is quite satisfied with the services she and her family receive from it. She lists nutrition as the number one concern of the community. “Some women in the community, knowing they cannot feed their children even before they have them, feel guilty about being a mother,” she said.

The Diocese of Masasi is working closely with the people of Nanganga, and is already working to begin to address the food security issues there. Staff from the diocese are working with families to build enclosures for cows, goats, guinea fowl and other animals, and education sessions on composting have been held to help families to have better yields from their home gardens. Further work by the diocese and by the people of Nanganga will continue to help families have enough to eat. And the clinic will continue to meet the health needs of the community.
